On February 15, churches are invited to honor the legacy of the young Hawaiian credited with inspiring the mission that brought Christianity to Hawai'i. Churches are encouraged to receive an offering to support the Henry 'Ōpūkaha'ia Scholarship Fund which provides financial assistance to candidates for ministry who are attending an accredited seminary and clergy pursuing continuing education. This offering may be collected at any time. Learn more and donate online: hcucc.org/henry-opukahaia-scholarship

Pepeluāli (February) is Hawaiian Language Month. The language thrives today thanks to the efforts of many who've revived it and continue to keep it alive.

“Black presence on the islands dates back to more than 200 years ago . . . long before Hawaii became a U.S. state.” —Danielle Wills, Executive Director, Hawaii Black Chamber of Commerce

“Black history and Hawaiian history are not the same, but they rhyme.”
 “When you erase history of resistance, you don’t erase the oppression. You just make it easier to repeat. That is why Black History Month matters, not as a celebration of the past, but as a defense of the future.” —Ken Lawson, Co-Director of the Hawaii Innocence Project

"In the year that is to come, let us not forget to make music - to find joy, to rest, to pursue art and music and all things that keep us human, and grounded, and hopeful. These actions are also part of our resistance to the cruelty of this moment and keep us resilient against apathy that can too easily take hold."

–Michael Neuroth, Director of the UCC
Office of Public Policy and Advocacy
